

The Queenslander Pictorial.

The End

Expedition Copying

Photo. Frank Hurley

The "Endurance", after the ice pressure was released, sank between the ice-floes. Then the floes coming together again, sheared off the masts and top deck, and thrust the ship below the ice into the waters of the Weddell Sea.

With Shackleton
in the Antarctic.

BOUND FOR THE FRONT.

25th Reinforcements for the 2nd A.L.H.

25th Reinforcements for the 5th A.L.H.

BOUND FOR THE FRONT.

The First Camel Corps Ambulance, now on the way to Egypt.

Ward, photo.

11th Reinforcements for the 11th A.L.H.

Talbot, photo.

Barleigh Heads.

See Page 29.

Happy Surfers.

Big Barleigh.

The Hobbs.

Looking North-East from Big Barleigh.

On the Rocks under Big Barleigh.

Riding on the Horlorn Beach towards Smithport.

Canoes on Tillabuggers Creek.

Smack Fishing.

With Shackleton in the Antarctic.

The Terrors of Weddell
Sea.

Drifting ice fields of the Weddell Sea, an indescribable chaos of ice ridges and hummocks.

A Titanic Alphaval.

The ice in the foreground of this picture was at first an even plane. At the end of August, 1915, in the words of the photographer, "it became a nightmare." Huge blocks of ice, weighing up to 50 tons, were cast up round the "Endurance" in indescribable confusion.

Copyright © 1917, The New York Times

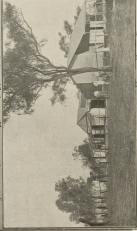

ON THE ROPER RIVER.

Geo. Skelton

Photo. J. W. Fisher, photo.

Canoes on the Roper River. These are long, shallow, and very narrow, but managed very gracefully.

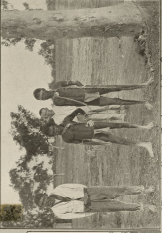

The Police Station, Roper River Bar.

NORTHERN TERRITORY.

Meeting at the Police Station, Roper Bar. Officer in uniform talking to the boat.

Officer in uniform talking to the boat.

Scenes at Rabaul.

Where Queenslanders are on Guard. See Page 29. Picture by Albert J. Lawrence

The "Mother" Namamole Hospital appearing.

His Excellency the Administrator
Sir Gordon G. Phillips, C.M.G.

The Road to Ombak—center of Ombak.

Ombak, Rabaul.

Road from Namamole to Rabaul.

A Pouteria-fringed Road.

The administrative building at Namamole, Rabaul, New Hebrides, the first view on looking N.W. from the road.

